Responsive to communication filed February 11, 1952.

It is noted that applicant is the owner of Registration No. 557,985. Claim to ownership of the same should be set up on the Statement.

When ownership of the above registration has been set up in the statement this case will be further considered with a view toward withdrawal of the references of record.

Objection is made to the term "fishing tackle" in the amended description of goods for the reason that it is indefinite. Applicant should indicate the items intended to be covered.

All technical requirements of the Examiner have been met.

The registrations of the United States Whip Company, cited, are noted.

Each of the cited registrations consists of a specific work mark, for instance, "GOLDEN SPINNER", "JAPANOID", and "GOLD MEDAL", accompanied by a pictorial design common to all of the distinctively different word marks. The pictorial design alone has no trade-mark distinctiveness. In fact, a buyer could not purchase the particular type of fishing line he desired by asking the dealer for, or displaying to the dealer, the pictorial design. The dealer would be at a loss whether to give the purchaser a "GOLDEN SPINNER" line or a "JAPANOID" line, or a "GOLD MEDAL" line, or any other line. The pictorial representation would be useless without the words, and it is the words only which constitute the trade-mark registered. Applicant does not use any of the registered words in his mark, and there is therefore a clear distinction between the marks.

Further than this, the pictorial representations of the two marks are neither identical nor confusingly similar. The reference marks disclose a flat, horizontal motif which seems to underline the word mark. The applicant's mark presents an inclined, triangular motif which is distinctly different.

It will also be noted that the reference marks and the applicant's mark have been in concurrent use for a quarter of a century, not only without interference or confusion, but without even the applicant's knowledge of the existence of the registered marks. Certainly there is no possibility of confusion now after all of these years, and passage to publication is respectfully requested.

Respectfully submitted,

Attorney for Wright & McGill Co.

Objection is made to the term "fish lures" in the particular description of goods for the reason that it is indefinite. If the "fish lures" are "artificial fish lures" they should be so described and are properly classified in Class 22, Games, toys and sporting goods. Amendment is required.

It is noted that specimens have been filed showing use of the mark on "bulk fish hooks" and "snelled fish hooks". Applicant is requested to file specimens on all items listed in the description of goods.
